SERIES FOR TITLE

Latest Situation in Series
for World's Baseball Title

Athletics are now decided favorites. Chicago fans still loyal to Cubs in hour of defeat. Clubs are at Chicago today, resting before resuming play tomorrow. Reulbach and Plank will probably pitch tomorrow's game.

By THOMAS S. RICE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The Cubs and Athletics reached here today at 2 o'clock, ready to resume play tomorrow for the world's baseball championship. If loyal "rootings" will stem the tide of defeat that seems to have set against the Cubs, Chance's men and the Athletics will be on even terms when the teams finish their first Chicago engagement.

The Chicago fans are desperate over the unexpected blow-up of the Cubs in Philadelphia. They have not given up hope, although they realize that the American League champions have such a huge lead on their rivals that a complete reversal of form will have to take place before they may think of final victory.

Chicago is planning to storm the West Side ball lot tomorrow and rip things up in true Chicago style in an effort to trip up the fast moving Athletics. Visions of four straight defeats of the Cubs loom large on the lake front, and the fans will move anything to avert such a disaster.

Deserve Victory.

The victories of the Athletics have been so clean-cut and decisive that there is little ground left for consolation, but the true Chicago fan still has his "hunch," and that is that something will yet take place to wreck the Athletics. And he is going to cling to this "hunch" until the thing is over.

The grandstand seats have all been sold for Thursday's and Friday's games and the bleachers are already counting the moments until they can swarm into the park. Since he is going to win Thursday's game, the outpouring of fans on Friday will be just as heavy, thus insuring a record-breaking attendance for the first four games. But should the Athletics make it three straight on Thursday, it is doubtful whether the bleachers will be taxed on Friday, for the Chicago "bugs" have no love for baseball funerals.

Cole In Reserve.

Advance advice from Manager Chance indicates that he will pitch Reulbach in Thursday's game, with "King" Cole as the underdog.

For Friday's contest, Chance will probably use McIntire, who, in the part of a game he pitched on Monday, showed

WEATHER REPORT.

The southern storm is now centered in southeastern Georgia. During the past forty-eight hours it has moved directly northward, traversing the entire Florida peninsula, and maintaining great intensity.

Rains in connection with this storm now prevail from Florida to the District of Columbia. He is going to cling to this "hunch" until the thing is over.

The southern storm will advance northeastward along the coast, and the western disturbance will move directly eastward, probably joining forces on the New England coast by Thursday night. General rains are indicated for the States lying east of the Mississippi with the exception of the central Gulf region. Dangerous gales will occur during the next twenty-four hours at the coast sections south of New England.

The cold weather from the west will overspread the central valleys tonight, and reach the coast sections by or during Thursday night.

SICK JUROR HALTS
DR. CRIPPEN TRIAL

Inspector Dew's Testimony Interrupted for Two Hours by Illness.

DETECTIVE RELATES
STORY OF PURSUIT

Search of Doctor's House, Before Discovery of Body of Belle Elmore, Described.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Suddenly stricken with illness, a juror toppled over in the box at the trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, today, and the trial came to a sensational halt.

The juror, Louis Greene, was carried into an anteroom, where he was attended by Drs. Wilcox and Marshall, two of the expert witnesses.

At the time Greene was stricken Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard, who arrested Crippen and Ethel Clare Leney on the liner Montrose, was on the stand. Crippen Guarded.

While testimony was being given this afternoon favorable to Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American physician, who is being tried for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Belle Elmore Crippen, in the famous tribunal at Old Bailey, it became known that the authorities are taking extraordinary precautions to guard against the suicide of the dapper little prisoner.

The tiny, mighty multitude crushed about the historic court of Old Bailey before today's session was resumed, and when Dr. Crippen, looking, if possible, more natty and stylish than yesterday, was ushered into the courtroom.

The throng of stylishly dressed women, many of them attired in gowns of the latest Paris mode, was increased today. The spectators' seats was a sea of waving plumes and abaze with jewels and bright colors.

No sooner had Lord Chief Justice Alverston set the wheels of justice in motion than it was evident that the case would be rushed with all possible speed. All of the scientists who testified at the inquest and the preliminary hearing were on hand. Inspector Dew was the first witness called to the stand.

The juror had not proceeded far into his story when Juror Greene pitched forward in his seat and fell upon the floor.

Instantly the courtroom was in a tremendous state of excitement, but Crippen wheeled in his chair and looked with professional calmness upon the scene.

Court attaches rushed to the jurors' box, where the stricken man was being supported by two of his fellows. Juror Greene was picked up and carried through the crowded courtroom into an anteroom. In the meantime Dr. Wilcox and Marshall had rushed forward to attend to the sick man.

It was believed that Greene had given way to the excitement attending the famous case, and that his nerves had

CLAGETT FOUND SANE
AND PLEADS GUILTY

Agrees to Give Bond on Miss Bertha M. Maus' Charge of Disturbance.

Maurice J. Clagett, who was taken down to the Washington Asylum some days ago in order that the authorities here might judge as to his sanity, has been found sane and was rearranged in the Police Court this afternoon before Judge Muldowney, on charges of threats against Bertha M. Maus.

Dr. Le Roy Hicklin, of the Washington Asylum, who made an examination of Clagett, stated in a letter to the Assistant District Attorney that Clagett's condition was due to the effect of alcohol.

Upon the application of the Clagett family, Attorney Given informed him that if he would plead guilty and give $500 bond the case would be dismissed. Clagett agreed, and on presentation of the required bond he was released from custody.

NEW YORKER SEEKS HITCHCOCK'S PLACE

A New York man is an applicant for the job of Postmaster General Hitchcock.

The applicant wrote the Postoffice Department today and asked that he be given consideration in connection with the Cabinet official's probable retirement.

The applicant seems to have a slightly wrong impression, however. He stated in his letter that he was anxious to know the educational qualification imposed by the Civil Service Commission in selecting Postmasters General. He asked that this information be forwarded him before the matter of appointing him be proceeded with further.

It is possible that the New Yorker, whose name the department will not give out at present, has heard some talk of the Postmaster General's retirement. Knowing, therefore, that a vacancy is likely to occur, he wanted to have his name on file before the time came to pick a successor.

Milk producers ignore invitation to appear at hearing asked for by dealers before District Commissioners tomorrow.

Chairman of dealers' executive committee denies report of dissension between producers and dealers' bodies.

Farmers are tired dawdling with the Commissioners suggested by A. S. Trundle as reason for their non-appearance.

Experts named who will appear before the Commissioners and plan of hearing outlined by dealers.

Milk producers of Maryland and Virginia will ignore the invitation to send representatives to the hearing before the Commissioners tomorrow.

"They will make no further appeal to District authorities regarding the tuberculin test question, and if after the hearing, the Health Department still insists on the test for all farms shipping milk to Washington the producers will begin legal action."

This statement of the producers' position was made today by John Thomas, of Ednor, Maryland, president of the Milk Producers' Association, and substantiated by D. W. Baker, their legal representative.

The reasons for failing to send representatives were not officially stated. Attention was called, however, to a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the producers' executive committee, at which it was stated that the farmers were "tired dallying with the Health

INSANE BOY GETS LICENSE TO MARRY

Mother Traces Donald McCurley Back to Hospital After His Lark.

Mrs. Cornelia McCurley appeared at the District Court today to annul a marriage license taken out by Donald McCurley, twenty-two years old, her son, yesterday, following his escape from the Government Hospital for the Insane.

Donald obtained a license to marry May Thor, nineteen years old, of Pittsburg, Pa. He said he had engaged the Rev. D. C. MacLeod to perform the ceremony.

Investigation showed the marriage had not taken place and that young McCurley is back in the asylum, evidently having returned voluntarily.

"I have no idea in the world who 'May Thor' can be," said Mrs. McCurley, "but I presume she is some mythical person, as Donald knows no girls."

She telephoned to the hospital and learned that he was there. When he applied for the license young McCurley gave his residence as Woodside, Md., but Mrs. McCurley stated today that he had never lived there. She is a widow and lives near Eighth and H streets northwest.

Another patient of the Government hospital several weeks ago was married while on parole, and later obtained his release on a writ of habeas corpus. His name was Frank.

WILL TRY ANOTHER
FLIGHT TO EUROPE,
SAYS WELLMAN

Commander of Wrecked Airship Undismayed by His Failure.

THRILLING STORY
TOLD OF ESCAPE

Equilibrating Device Is Blamed by Balloonists as Being Responsible for Their Defeat.

ON BOARD ROYAL MAIL STEAMER TRENT, BY WIRELESS TO NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—"I am going across the Atlantic in a dirigible balloon."

"Far from disheartening me, this failure has only spurred me to higher ambitions."

"It was our equilibrating that disabled the America. That was the one fatal error, despite the fact that the plan had worked out well, in theory, and at the time I made my first attempt at the North Pole. It will have to be a new type of dirigible that will be used, but even while the America was drifting helpless and nearly a total wreck above the waters of the Atlantic, Vaniman and myself were talking over what was needed. We know and intend getting busy as soon as possible."

Walter Wellman, first captain of an airship to be wrecked at sea, awakened today on the steamer Trent more determined than ever to be the pioneer in piloting a balloon across the ocean. Standing with his shipmates in the dining saloon of the Bermuda liner which saved the party from terrible hardship, if not certain death, yesterday while east of Cape Hatteras, he insisted that a sky voyage to Europe was feasible.

All the air navigators are in excellent spirits today, and feel no ill effects of their distressing experience.

Cat Put in Cage.

The America's cat, mascot of the expedition, seems the only sufferer. Ever since it was brought on board the Trent, the women passengers have insisted on petting it. A number of them became indignant when "Jack" Irwin, the wireless operator of the ill-fated dirigible, insisted on having the animal placed in a cage and demanded that the passengers quit trying to stuff it with delicacies.

Irwin claims the cat and has already offered a small fortune for it. He says, however, that it is not for sale but will be kept in order that it may become the mascot of America II when that airship is constructed and starts on its journey to Europe.

Ever since they were transferred from the lifeboat to the Trent, Wellman and his party have been overwhelmed with congratulations over their escape. While Irwin declined to minimize the actual danger, Murray Simon, former junior officer of the America, admitted today that

STORK BEATS M. D.;
LAWSUIT IS RESULT

How Physician Ran Second Told In Peculiar Petition Filed Today.

How a physician lost out in a race with the stork as told in a petition in the Supreme Court today, when Mrs. Mary A. Thomas filed suit for $5,000 damages against Dr. Arthur C. Merriam.

The suit is one of the most peculiar ever filed in the Supreme Court of the District, the point involved being whether a physician may be held responsible for not being in his office or failing to leave a note where he can be found.

Mrs. Thomas informs the court that Dr. Merriam was warned several weeks before April 1, last, that the stork was hovering over the Thomas home, and she alleges that for that reason he should have held himself in readiness for the emergency. Despite this warning, she alleges that it took members of her family three hours to locate the physician, and by the time he arrived at her home the proverbial bird had performed its mission and departed.

Because of the absence of the physician, Mrs. Thomas avers that she suffered physical disability, and makes that fact the ground on which she claims $5,000 damages.

The suit was filed by J. T. Sherier, Jr., and Paea Oberlin, attorneys for Mrs. Thomas.

STORM COMING UP THE COAST
MAY HIT CITY

Weather Bureau Orders Hurricane Signals Posted Up to Norfolk.

WHOLE OF FLORIDA
HAS BEEN CUT OFF

Many Towns Inundated and Loss to Life and Property Is Incalculable.

Storm Situation Growing
Graver

Hurricane, which devastated Cuba and cut southern Florida from communication, hurrying up Atlantic coast at rate of sixty-eight miles an hour.

Washington, in prediction of Weather Bureau, will feel force of storm, beginning with rain and wind tonight, and continuing with heavy winds tomorrow.

Hurricane signals set all along Atlantic coast as far as Norfolk. Storm gives no indication of blowing seaward.

Gale is forming over lake region and moving eastward, with probability of colliding with southern hurricane off New England coast.

With Cuba in its wake, devastated, and southern Florida cut off from communication for thirty-six hours, baffling all efforts to ascertain the extent of damage there, the hurricane, which was believed to have been moving eastward, has changed its direction and is coming up the Atlantic coast at the rate of sixty-eight miles an hour.

In an effort to minimize the damage that is sure to be wrought along the Atlantic coast States, the Weather Bureau is employing every means to give the fullest warning of the approaching storm.

Hurricane signals have been ordered set as far north as Norfolk, Va., with storm signals reaching to Sandy Hook. The line of signals will be advanced continuously during the afternoon and night.

Centered At Savannah.

The latest advice received by the bureau this afternoon indicates the center of the disturbance is near Savannah, where the velocity of the wind is steadily increasing. The tendency of the wind's direction, while practically following the coast, is inland.

Washington probably will feel the first effect of the disturbance tonight. Rains are predicted, accompanied by light winds. Tomorrow the wind is expected to be heavy, continuing, probably, until Friday.

If the course of the storm should incline more inland, the Capital may be visited by one of the worst storms in its history.

So far, the storm has been radiating in its course, and it is likely that it may blow off toward the sea at any moment or that it may take a decided inland direction.

Storms May Clash.

The Weather Bureau announced this morning that a gale is forming over Lake Superior and moving eastward. It is in line to collide with the hurricane, which is rushing up the Atlantic coast. There is extreme probability of the two disturbances meeting somewhere off the New England coast some time tomorrow.

It is not believed at the Bureau that the coming together of the two storms will result in more damage than the Southern hurricane itself is expected to cause.

All of today the bureau has experienced difficulty in getting in touch with the Southern points which have been visited by the hurricane.

Savannah the Center.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 19.—The full force of the hurricane struck Savannah today, cutting off that city from communication for several hours, after reports had been sent out saying the wind had reached sixty-eight miles per hour and was rising.

The telegraph and telephone companies this afternoon are sending all messages to Valdosta, Ga., and attempting to get them through to the storm-swept section by messengers from that point.

The hurricane in its movement northward has cut off town after town from communication, and this afternoon the whole of Florida and half of Georgia is without wires.

It is believed here that the property loss will be the greatest sustained from a storm in this section in many
